Reminder on why this is shaped this way: Google fully deprecated FAQ rich results on 7 May 2026, for every site. FAQPage markup remains a valid Schema.org type and is still parsed by Google and by other crawlers, so keep it where it matches visible content, but do not build anything here expecting a SERP accordion. These pages are built for people deciding whether to enquire, and for answer engines.

Canonical rule

Every question has exactly one home. Where a full guide exists, the guide is canonical and the FAQ answer is a 40 to 80 word summary that links to it. Where no guide exists, the category page is canonical. The same answer text must never appear in full on two URLs.

- Canonical on the category page: most questions.
- Canonical in a guide, summarised here: deposit, Rundfunkbeitrag, Wohnungsgeberbestätigung, notice periods, warm and cold rent, blocked accounts, Schufa, MVV zones.
- Inline on a commercial page, reworded and shortened: the eight in section 8 below. Rewording is not optional. Identical paragraphs on a room page and a category page compete with each other.

Conventions for every answer

- Answer in the first sentence. No preamble, no restating the question.
- 40 to 120 words. If it needs more, it needs a guide.
- Second person. Contractions. Sentence case. No exclamation marks.
- Any figure that can change carries a visible last-reviewed date on the page.
- Never promise something the lease does not say. These answers are read as commitments.

Title tag	Questions, answered YoungNest Ottobrunn
Meta description	Renting, arriving, registering and living in a YoungNest shared house near Munich. Fifty-one questions answered in plain English.
H1	Questions, answered
Target length	300 words plus the index

Intro copy:

Renting a room in Germany involves more paperwork than most people expect, and most of it is only confusing the first time. These are the questions we actually get asked, grouped so you can find yours quickly. If something is missing, message us and we will answer it here as well as to you.

Category card labels and their example question:

3. Booking and applying

URL	/en/questions/booking-and-applying
Title tag	Booking a room: how it works YoungNest
Meta description	How to enquire, which documents you need, and whether you can book a room near Munich without viewing it first. Answers for international applicants.
H1	Booking and applying
Target length	1,100 words, 7 questions

Intro:

Most people who write to us are applying from another country, often without a German bank account, a German guarantor or a credit record. None of that is a problem here. This page explains how booking works and exactly what we will ask you for.

How do I book a room?

Send an enquiry with your move-in date and how long you want to stay. We reply with what is available and the price. If it suits you, we send an application form and a short document list. Once you are approved we send the lease to sign electronically, and your room is held for you from that moment.

Do I have to view the room in person first?

No. You can view it in person, take a live video tour with us, or book without a viewing at all. If you book without seeing it, you have a statutory 14-day right to withdraw from the contract for any reason and at no cost. We send you the withdrawal form together with your lease.

Who can rent here?

International students, exchange students, interns and young professionals. You do not have to be a student. We will ask for identification, evidence that the rent is affordable for you, and a confirmation of enrolment or an internship contract if that applies.

What if I do not have a German bank account, a Schufa record or a German guarantor?

That is normal when you are arriving from abroad and it is not a reason to be refused. A blocked account, a scholarship confirmation, a guarantor outside Germany or prepaying the first few months all work.

Many Munich landlords use a missing Schufa as a filter. We do not, because a record you have had no time to build tells us nothing about you.

Which documents do you actually need?

Identification, one piece of financial evidence from the list above, and proof of your status if you are a student or intern. That is all. We do not ask for a tenant self-disclosure form, and we never ask about family plans, religion or health.

How quickly can I move in?

If the room is free and your documents are in order, usually within one to two weeks. Move-in dates are the 1st or the 15th of a month. If you need a specific date, say so in your enquiry and we will tell you what is possible.

Can my friend and I share a room?

Yes, in the rooms that are big enough. Shared rooms have two separate beds, two wardrobes and two desks, laid out so nobody is sleeping side by side. You both sign the lease and you both leave together unless we approve a replacement. Sharing costs less per person than any single room we offer.

4. Contract and leaving

URL	/en/questions/contract-and-leaving
Title tag	Your contract, notice and leaving early YoungNest
Meta description	Minimum stay, notice periods, cancelling before you arrive, and how to leave early using a replacement tenant. German tenancy rules in plain English.
H1	Contract and leaving
Target length	1,200 words, 6 questions

Intro:

German tenancy law protects tenants more than most people expect, which is good news once you understand it. The two things worth knowing before you sign are the minimum stay and the notice period, because neither can be shortened later by agreement.

What is the minimum stay?

Three months for students, exchange students and interns on a fixed-term contract covering a stated study or internship period. Six months on an open-ended contract. There is no maximum, and plenty of people stay for years.

How much notice do I have to give?

Three months on an open-ended contract, in writing. In practice: your notice must reach us by the third working day of a month, and the contract then ends at the end of the second month after that. Give notice on 2 March and you leave on 31 May.

On a fixed-term contract you give no notice at all, because it ends on the date already agreed.

Can I leave earlier than that?

Usually yes, through a replacement. Find someone suitable, we check them, and once they sign you are released from the day their tenancy starts. We look for someone too. This is how most people leave early and it normally works, so ask us rather than assuming you are stuck.

Can I cancel after signing but before I move in?

Yes. Free of charge up to 30 days before your move-in date, with rent and deposit already paid refunded in full. Between 15 and 30 days before, half a month's rent. Fewer than 15 days before, one month's rent, and you can also simply move in later instead.

If you booked without a viewing, your 14-day right of withdrawal comes first and costs you nothing at all.

Can I extend my stay?

Usually. Ask at least six weeks before your end date and we will answer within five working days. If we can extend, we confirm it as a written amendment to your existing contract rather than starting a new one.

Can YoungNest ask me to leave?

Only for the reasons German tenancy law allows, and with the statutory notice. In practice that means not paying rent or seriously breaching the house rules. We cannot end your tenancy because we would like the room back or have someone who would pay more.

5. Money

URL	/en/questions/money
Title tag	Rent, deposit and what's included YoungNest FAQ
Meta description	What the all-inclusive rent covers, what it does not, how much deposit we ask for, when you get it back, and how the broadcasting fee works.
H1	Money
Target length	1,400 words, 10 questions

Intro:

One figure, one payment, no annual utilities bill. This page sets out exactly what that figure covers and the handful of things it does not, because a price that hides its exclusions is not really a price.

What exactly is included in the price?

Rent, furniture, heating, hot water, electricity, water, high-speed internet and cleaning of the shared areas. Also waste charges, garden care, winter service and building insurance. You get one figure and one monthly payment, and there is no annual utilities reconciliation to settle later.

What is not included?

The German broadcasting contribution, cleaning of your own room, your own contents and liability insurance, your phone and streaming subscriptions, replacement of keys you lose, and damage beyond normal wear. Parking and extra storage are charged separately where they are available.

What is the Rundfunkbeitrag and do I have to pay it?

It is Germany's public broadcasting contribution and it is not included in your rent. It is charged once per home, not per person, so everyone in your shared home together owes one contribution of roughly EUR 18 a month, which you split between you. At move-in we tell you who is registered for your home.

If you receive BAföG or certain other benefits you can usually apply to be exempt. We do not collect this money ourselves.

Why do you not just include the broadcasting contribution?

Because it is a levy on the people living in the home rather than a cost of the building, and it cannot properly be built into rent. We would rather say so than advertise that it is included and explain otherwise later.

When is rent due and how do I pay?

Monthly in advance, by the third working day of the month, by SEPA direct debit or bank transfer. If you move in mid-month you pay only for the days you stay. We do not take cash and we never ask you to pay to a different account than the one in your lease.

What happens if I pay late?

You get a reminder and interest can be charged. If you fall two months behind we are entitled to end the tenancy. If money is tight, contact us before the due date: a written payment plan is always better than arrears, and we would much rather arrange one.

How much is the deposit?

Two months' net rent, capped at EUR 1,500. By law you can pay it in three equal monthly instalments, and we offer that to everyone rather than waiting to be asked. The statutory maximum is three months' rent; we ask for less deliberately.

When do I get my deposit back?

Within 30 days of handover, with interest. We can move that fast because your rent already includes utilities, so there is no annual bill to hold money against. If we deduct anything, you get an itemised statement showing what and why.

Will the rent go up?

Not during a fixed-term contract. On an open-ended contract any increase follows the statutory rules and comes in writing well in advance. If your contract has agreed steps, every step and date is written into it before you sign.

Do you charge an agency fee?

No. You rent directly from us and there is no commission to pay.

6. Moving in and out

URL	/en/questions/moving-in-and-out
Title tag	Moving in and moving out YoungNest FAQ
Meta description	What happens on your first day, how we help with your Anmeldung, what to bring, and exactly what is expected when you hand the room back.
H1	Moving in and out
Target length	1,300 words, 10 questions

Intro:

Two days matter more than the rest: the day you arrive and the day you leave. Both are documented in writing with photographs, which protects you as much as it protects us.

What happens on my first day?

You arrive at your appointment slot between 09:00 and 19:00. We walk through the room and shared areas with you, complete a written handover record with photographs, go through the inventory, hand over the keys and Wi-Fi details, and show you the escape routes, the fuse box and the water stopcock. You leave with a copy of everything you signed.

What if I arrive late at night or on a Sunday?

Tell us in advance and we will arrange it. If nobody can meet you, we hand over by key safe with a video walkthrough, then complete the handover record with you within 48 hours. Nobody should land in a new country and find they cannot get in.

What do I need to bring?

Bedding is provided for your first night, along with the mattress, pillow and duvet. Bring your own towels and anything personal. Optional packs for towels and basic kitchen things are available to pre-order, so you can arrive with nothing and still shower and eat.

Do you help with the Anmeldung, the address registration?

Yes. You must register with the municipality within two weeks of moving in, and for that you need a confirmation from your landlord. We give you that Wohnungsgeberbestätigung at handover. Registering late can attract a fine, so book your appointment in your first few days.

What if I find something broken after I move in?

Tell us within seven days and it counts as pre-existing, so it can never be held against your deposit. After that, report anything as soon as you notice it. A small fault reported early stays small.

What do I have to do before I leave?

Empty the room, clean it, empty and defrost the fridge, take out the rubbish, fill any nail holes, put the furniture back where it was and return every key. You do not have to repaint. Decorating is our job, not yours.

When exactly do I have to be out?

By 12:00 on the last day of your contract, and the handover appointment happens then. Leaving the keys somewhere does not end the tenancy; the handover does. Book the appointment as soon as you know your date.

Can I ask for an inspection before the final one?

Yes, and we recommend it. About three weeks before you leave we will walk through with you and point out anything you can put right yourself. It usually means nothing is deducted at all.

What can be deducted from my deposit?

Unpaid rent, missing inventory, unreturned keys, cleaning if the room was not left clean, and damage beyond normal wear. Normal wear is never deducted, and neither is decorating. Everything is compared against the photographs taken on your first day.

What if I lose a key?

Tell us straight away. You pay the replacement cost of the key. If a lost key genuinely compromises the building's lock system there can be a larger cost, which is one good reason to hold liability insurance.

7. Living here

URL	/en/questions/living-here
Title tag	Living in a YoungNest shared house FAQ
Meta description	Guests, quiet hours, cleaning, the garden, pets, repairs and whether anyone enters your room. How a shared house near Munich actually works day to day.
H1	Living here
Target length	1,200 words, 11 questions

Intro:

Shared living works when the rules are boring and everybody knows them. These are ours. Most of them are simply how German households run, and a few of them, like quiet hours, matter more here than you might expect.

How is the house cleaned?

We clean the shared areas on a regular schedule. Your own room, and the day-to-day tidiness of the kitchen and bathroom, are down to the residents, with a simple rota on the kitchen door.

Can I have guests, or a partner staying over?

Of course. Overnight guests are fine and expected. If someone is effectively living with you, meaning more than about 14 nights in a month, we need to agree it in writing, because that changes how many people the home is housing.

Are there quiet hours?

Yes: 22:00 to 06:00 every day, and all day on Sundays and public holidays. Germany takes this seriously and so do your neighbours. It applies in the garden too, which catches people out in summer.

Can I use the garden?

Yes, it is for every resident, and there is a lot of it on all sides of the house. Put the furniture back after you use it, barbecue only in the designated spot, and remember quiet hours apply outdoors as well.

Is smoking allowed?

Not anywhere indoors, including your own room. There is a designated outdoor area. This applies to vaping too.

Can I bring a pet?

Ask us first. Fish and small caged animals are usually fine. Anything larger depends on the house and on the other residents, so it is a conversation rather than a form.

Can I put things on the walls?

Yes, within reason. Use hooks and picture nails and fill the holes when you leave. Please do not drill into tiles or repaint. You are not expected to repaint when you go.

Something has broken. What do I do?

Report it through the channel we give you at move-in. Emergencies, meaning safety, water, heating in winter or a failed lock, are dealt with the same day. Appliance faults and blockages within two working days. Everything else within ten.

Will anyone enter my room?

Not without at least 24 hours' notice, at a reasonable time, and only for a repair, an inspection, or a viewing when you are leaving. The single exception is a genuine emergency such as a leak or a fire.

Do I need insurance?

It is not compulsory but we strongly recommend personal liability insurance, which is inexpensive in Germany and covers you if you accidentally damage something. Contents insurance is worth it if you have a laptop and a bike. Our building insurance does not cover your belongings.

How do I deal with the waste separation?

There are separate bins for paper, packaging, glass, organic waste and residual waste, and the collection days are on the kitchen noticeboard. It looks fussy and then becomes automatic within a fortnight. Ask a housemate rather than guessing.

Related links: house rules, quiet hours in Germany \(full guide\), waste separation \(full guide\).

8. Location and travel

URL	/en/questions/location
Title tag	Getting to Munich from Ottobrunn YoungNest FAQ
Meta description	Real walking times to the S-Bahn and the shops, which MVV zone you are in, how long to Marienplatz, and how to reach the universities and the campuses.
H1	Location and travel
Target length	1,000 words, 7 questions

Intro:

The house is in Ottobrunn, in the south-east of the Munich area, on a quiet residential street with a garden on every side. It is not in the city centre, and the trade you are making is twenty minutes on a train in exchange for space, greenery and a rent that is not a Munich rent.

Publish measured walking times, not estimates. Walk each route with a timer before this page goes live. The current flyers claim three minutes to both the station and the supermarkets; from Mozartstrasse 80 the shops are roughly 300 to 350 m and the station about 425 m in a straight line, so the real figures are higher. Overstating this is the kind of detail a prospect checks on arrival.

Where exactly is the house?

Mozartstrasse 80, 85521 Ottobrunn. A quiet residential street in the south-east of the Munich area, with supermarkets a few minutes' walk away and the S-Bahn station close by. [Insert measured walking times.]

How long does it take to get into Munich?

The S-Bahn reaches Marienplatz in about 20 minutes, with a train roughly every 20 minutes. That is a door-to-door time of around half an hour to the middle of the city. [Confirm the current service frequency.]

Which transport zone am I in, and what does a ticket cost?

Ottobrunn sits in the M and 1 fare zones rather than the inner zone alone, so factor that into your monthly ticket. It is worth comparing a zone-based monthly ticket, the semester ticket and the Deutschlandticket before you buy. [Confirm current prices.]

Can I get to the universities easily?

Yes. The city campuses of TUM and LMU are about 20 to 30 minutes by S-Bahn, and the Universitaet der Bundeswehr in Neubiberg is one stop away. Garching takes longer because of the change. [Publish per-campus door-to-door times.]

What about the employers nearby?

Infineon's Campeon site in Neubiberg is close enough to cycle to, and the aerospace and defence cluster around Ottobrunn and Taufkirchen, including Airbus Defence and Space and IABG, is a short ride away. Several residents commute without using a train at all.

Is there parking?

[Confirm before publication. Do not state that parking is available until it is, and do not imply a space comes with a room unless it does.]

What is nearby day to day?

Supermarkets including EDEKA and Penny, bakeries, cafes and restaurants, a pharmacy and doctors' practices, all within a short walk. It is a settled residential suburb rather than a nightlife district, which is precisely why it is quiet.

9. Inline placement map

These eight answers are moved onto the commercial pages, reworded and shortened. This is the highest-conversion part of the whole FAQ build, because it answers the doubt at the moment it arises instead of three clicks later.

Question	Inline on	Form it takes there
What is included in the price	Every room page, directly under the price	One sentence of inclusions plus one sentence of exclusions. Equal prominence, per HD-02 section 4.
What is not included	Every room page, same block	Named items, not 'terms apply'.
How much is the deposit	Room page, 'before you ask' block	Amount, instalments, 30-day return. One line each.
Minimum stay and notice	Room page, 'before you ask' block	Minimum term, notice period, and the replacement-tenant escape.
No German bank account or Schufa	Room page and the enquiry form	Reassurance plus the four accepted alternatives. This is a differentiator; do not bury it.
Can I book without viewing	Enquiry form and booking confirmation	Withdrawal right stated plainly, with the form attached.
Do you help with the Anmeldung	Room page features list and the arrival email	One line. It is a real service and a real reason to choose you.
Rundfunkbeitrag	Directly under the all-inclusive statement	Excluded, roughly EUR 18 per home, split between housemates.

10. German question set

Not a translation. A German applicant asks a different set of questions: less about visas, blocked accounts and bank accounts, more about Nebenkosten, Kuendigungsfrist, Mietpreisbremse and the Hausordnung. Around 30 questions against the 51 English ones, written by a native speaker.

Questions to keep, translated

The operational ones carry over unchanged in substance: Was ist in der Miete enthalten, Was ist nicht enthalten, Wie hoch ist die Kautio, Wann bekomme ich die Kautio zurueck, Wann ist die Miete faellig, Wie lange ist die Kuendigungsfrist, Wie lange ist die Mindestmietdauer, Kann ich einen Nachmieter stellen, Was passiert am Einzugstag, Was muss ich beim Auszug erledigen, Ruhezeiten, Besuch und Uebernachtungsgaeste, Garten, Rauchen, Haustiere, Reparaturen melden, Betreten des Zimmers, Muelltrennung, Lage und Anbindung, S-Bahn und Fahrzeit, MVV-Zonen.

Questions unique to the German set

- Ist die Miete eine Inklusivmiete oder eine Kaltmiete mit Nebenkosten?
- Gibt es eine Nebenkostenabrechnung am Jahresende?
- Gilt hier die Mietpreisbremse, und wie ist der Moeblierungszuschlag berechnet?
- Ist der Mietvertrag befristet oder unbefristet, und gibt es einen Kuendigungsverzicht?
- Brauche ich eine Schufa-Auskunft, und wie aktuell muss sie sein?
- Wer haftet bei einer Zweier-Belegung, und haften wir gesamtschuldnerisch?
- Wie ist die Kautio angelegt, und wer bekommt die Zinsen?
- Gibt es Kleinreparaturen, die ich selbst zahlen muss, und bis zu welcher Hoehe?
- Muss ich beim Auszug renovieren oder streichen?
- Ist eine Anmeldung mit Hauptwohnsitz moeglich, und bekomme ich eine Wohnungsgeberbestaetigung?
- Wie funktioniert der Rundfunkbeitrag in einer WG?
- Kann ich das Zimmer untervermieten oder waehrend eines Auslandssemesters weitergeben?

Questions to drop from the German set: blocked accounts, visa and residence title questions, 'do you help with the Anmeldung' as a headline benefit, and the English-speaking doctor question. They are noise to a German applicant.

11. Search component specification

11.1 Behaviour

Aspect	Specification
Index	Client-side. All 51 questions with their answers, category, page URL and fragment ID, plus a keywords array per question. The whole index is well under 100 KB, so no server, no API and no latency.
Library	A small fuzzy search library such as Fuse.js, loaded from the CDN. Weight the question field roughly three times the answer field so a phrase match on the question always wins.
Trigger	From two characters, debounced at 150 ms. Show a maximum of six results.
Result row	The question in full, a one-line snippet from the answer, and a category pill. No relevance scores shown.
Click behaviour	Navigate to the category page URL plus the question's fragment, with that answer already expanded and scrolled into view. Never open a modal and never strand the user on a results page.
Typo tolerance	Essential. 'rundfunk', 'rundfunkbeitrag', 'runfunk' and 'GEZ' must all find the same answer.
Keyboard	Arrow keys move through results, Enter opens, Escape clears. The input is a combobox with an aria-live result count.
Empty state	'No answer for that yet.' plus a WhatsApp button and a one-line note that the question has been logged and will be answered. Never a dead end.

11.2 Synonym and alias map

Each question carries a keywords array so that the words people actually type resolve to the right answer. Seed it with these and extend it from the search log.

Canonical topic	Aliases to index
Rundfunkbeitrag	GEZ, TV licence, TV license, radio fee, broadcasting fee, Rundfunk, ARD ZDF
Anmeldung	registration, city registration, register address, Einwohnermeldeamt, Buergerbuero, resident permit appointment
Wohnungsgeberbestaetigung	landlord confirmation, landlord certificate, proof of address, Vermieterbescheinigung
Deposit	Kaution, bond, security deposit, caution money
Notice period	Kuendigung, cancel contract, terminate, move out early, break lease
Replacement tenant	Nachmieter, subletting, sublet, hand over my room, find someone else
Shared flat	WG, Wohngemeinschaft, flatshare, flat share, house share, coliving, co-living
All-inclusive	Inklusivmiete, warm rent, Warmmiete, Nebenkosten, utilities, bills included
Blocked account	Sperrkonto, Fintiba, Expatrio, Coracle, visa account
Guarantor	Buerge, Buergschaft, co-signer, cosigner, parents guarantee
S-Bahn	train, metro, U-Bahn, public transport, MVV, MVG, commute, Marienplatz
Ticket	Deutschlandticket, 49 euro ticket, semester ticket, Semesterticket, monthly pass, Isarcard
Quiet hours	Ruhezeit, noise, loud, party, neighbours, Sunday
Waste	Muell, Muelltrennung, bins, recycling, rubbish, trash, Gelber Sack

Canonical topic	Aliases to index
Guests	partner, girlfriend, boyfriend, visitors, overnight, friend staying
Pets	dog, cat, animals, Haustier, Hund, Katze
Internet	wifi, Wi-Fi, WLAN, broadband, speed
Insurance	Haftpflicht, liability, Hausrat, contents, Versicherung

11.3 Analytics events

These are the instrumentation, and they matter more than the search feature itself.

Event	Properties	What it is for faq_search	query, results_count, language, page	What people look for, in their own words
faq_search_no_result	query, language	The single most valuable content brief you will get. Review weekly.
faq_question_open	question_id, category, source (search, category page, inline block)	Drives the 'most asked this month' row and shows which inline blocks are working faq_guide_click	question_id, guide_url	Whether the summarise-and-link pattern is pulling people into the guides
faq_contact_click	question_id or query, channel	Where the FAQ fails and a human is still needed
faq_to_enquiry	last_question_id, category	The one that justifies the whole build: which answers precede an enquiry

Operating rhythm: review the no-result log every week. Anything asked three times becomes a new FAQ entry within a fortnight; anything asked twenty times becomes a guide and goes into the content calendar.

11.4 Build rules that affect discoverability

- All answer text must be in the delivered HTML. Collapse with CSS, never render on click. An accordion that fetches its content leaves crawlers and answer engines with an empty page.
- Every question needs a stable fragment ID that never changes, because it will be linked from emails, WhatsApp replies and the inline blocks.
- Keep FAQPage schema where it matches the visible questions and answers. It no longer produces a rich result, it is still parsed, and removing it gains nothing.
- hreflang between each English page and its German counterpart. Never canonical one language to the other, even though the question sets differ.
- A visible 'last reviewed' date on every page carrying a figure: the broadcasting amount, the deposit cap, ticket prices, response targets.
- The search input is not a substitute for structure. If someone has to search to find the deposit answer, the inline block on the room page has failed.
